PICK CARIBBEAN ISLAND FOR TROPICAL
SEQUENCES FOR "DR. DOLITTLE" FILM

REGISTRATION SECTION

Where do you go to find the perfect tropical locale for the most expensive musical ever filmed, Twentieth Century Fox's $15,000,000 production of "Dr. Dolittle?"

Samoa? Hawaii?

Hardly.

You go to the Caribbean. Just like any other tourist seeking escape from the rigors of winter on a languorous tropical isle sheltered by by softly swaying palms, blue lagoons and crystal beaches. For "Dr. Dolittle," based on the late Hugh Lofting's classic stories for children and grownups about a lovable and eccentric English doctor who could talk to animals in their own language, Twentieth Century Fox chose beautiful St. Lucia, 25 miles south of Martinique, as the "ideal" tropical locale. Actually, however, any of a score or more Caribbean islands could have served equally well as the mysterious Sea Star Island on which the doctor, played by Rex Harrison, and his friends are shipwrecked during their search for the Great Pink Sea Snail.

Stretching in a far-flung arc from south of Florida to Surinam, Holland's Caribbean outpost on the coast of South America, the islands were host to more than 3,000,000 visitors in 1966, according to the Caribbean Travel Association. While they differ in topography, history and culture, virtually every island offers the attractions of a tropical paradise that everyone dreams of finding at some time in his life. The trade winds keep them comfortably cool even in the summer; accommodations are as luxurious or simple as one's tastes and pocketbook can desire; transportation facilities are excellent and economical; the people friendly and hospitable.

Sportsmen can angle for possible world's record marlin, scuba dive in underwater gardens, golf on seaside courses. Shoppers can buy perfumes, cameras, watches and other brand-name merchandise in numerous free-port cities at a fraction of their stateside prices. And for those wishing to gamble, there are plush, government-supervised casinos on many of the islands.

In "Dr. Dolittle," Harrison and his friends -- Samantha Eggar, a lovely stoaway, Anthony Newley, as Matthew Muggs, the Irish cat's meat man, and William Dix, who plays Tommy Stubbins, Harrison's eight-year-old friend and assistant -- reach St. Lucia the hard way, swimming ashore when their ship, "Flounder," is hit by a tremendous storm. Nowadays visitors to the Caribbean arrive in comfort and style aboard fast jets, luxurious cruise liners and inter-island schooners and motor yachts.

In fact, St. Lucia is a favorite haven for yachtsmen, and has been for many years. Castries, its capital, is visited by hundreds of yachts every year for the safe anchorage afforded by its magnificent land-locked harbor and facilities for fresh supplies. Marigot Bay, where most of the shooting for "Dr. Dolittle" took place last November and December, with its marina, Yacht Haven Hotel and Marigot des Roseaux Club and Hotel are additional reasons for the island's popularity with blue water sailors.

Ruggedly beautiful, with green mountains and deep valleys abloom with hibiscus, oleander, bougainvillaea, flamboyant trees, orchids and other tropical blossoms, St. Lucia has a number of unique features. Mount Soufriere, for example, is the only "drive in" volcano in the world; you can actually drive up by car to the very edge of the sulphurous crater -- and lots of visitors do! The most photogenic mountains in the entire Caribbean are also on St. Lucia: Petit Piton and Gros Piton, 2,462 and 2,618 feet high, are a shutterbug's delight as well as a challenge to the hardest climber. Also famous are St. Lucia's sulphur springs and baths. Built for the soldiers of Louis XVI during the intermittent struggle between England and France for 150 years for possession of the island, the baths' therapeutic waters still offer relief to sufferers from rheumatism, arthritis and other ills.

The colonial wars, in which the island changed hands no less than 14 times, are now only a memory. So is the excitement and hubbub that attended the filming of "Dr. Dolittle." The stars, technicians and camera crews are gone. So are all the animals, the seals, chimpanzees, dogs, parrots and others that took part in the film. Even the Great Pink Sea Snail, so huge that it had to be flown in by special cargo plane from the mainland shop of the artisans who fashioned its gleaming shell, is no more. And the St. Lucians, hundreds of whom served as extras before the cameras and as secretaries, accountants, carpenters and painters behind the scenes, have returned to their everyday pursuits.

Which, maybe, is the way it should be. After all, there are so few paradises left, it would be a pity to lose even one.

NEW CARIBBEAN NATION

SEEKS U.S. INVESTORS

Delegation In New York Promotes

Hotel and Industrial Development

NEW YORK, March 17 -- Some call it a 'mini-state.' Others may never have heard of it. But St. Kitts, one of the newest nations in the world, just 18-days old today, faces a bright future as a tourist destination in the Caribbean, according to Deputy Premier C.A.P. Southwell.

He and two other officials representing St. Kitts and the nearby islands of Nevis and Anguilla, are currently in New York to promote both the touristic attractions and investment opportunities of the new three-island nation which received statehood in association with Great Britain on February 28.

Firstly, says Deputy Premier Southwell, the proper name of his island is St. Christopher -- although it is known by most everyone, including himself, as St. Kitts.

Its new statehood, he says, means that the three-island nation enjoys full internal self-government, and is no longer a colony, although Great Britain will still handle its foreign affairs and defense by mutual agreement. Therefore, he adds, the nation will not enter the United Nations or the Organization of American States, although it could send representatives to meetings of these organizations on matters directly concerning it.

"We are trying to put new verve into our programs for tourist development," says Southwell. "At present, we do not have enough suitable hotels, and many other attractions require development."

Three recent pieces of legislation, all passed before statehood was achieved, are aimed not only at furthering this touristic development, but at providing incentives for new industries.

The first is the Income Tax Law, which declares a tax holiday of from five to ten years for new hotels of at least 10 rooms, and for "pioneer" industries, described in another law as new industries not in competition with those already established on the islands. Owners of hotels or industries covered under this law need not ^{begin to} write off depreciation costs for tax purposes until the end of the tax-free period. Furthermore, the tax-free status extends to dividends for shareholders, and to interest on loans made available to these hotels and businesses.

An Import Duty Law permits duty-free entry of all goods required for the building and equipping of eligible hotels and industries.

An 850-acre beachfront section on St. Kitts will be developed, under these laws, into a new resort and residential township by an English consortium, says Southwell, and negotiations are underway for development of a similar site on Nevis by a consortium of European and American investors.

Development costs on the islands are relatively low, says Southwell. Land sells for an average of $600 to $3,000 per acre, and there presently is a labor surplus, with many islanders forced to take jobs in nearby more developed islands such as the U.S. Virgin Islands.

"Our islands are relatively unspoiled," says the deputy premier, "and tourists are not treated as commercial items, but receive a genuinely warm welcome." He adds that the new nation is not seeking an uncontrolled burgeoning tourism, but rather the type of development which will retain the present unspoiled charm.

Another prime goal of the delegation in New York is to attract more cruise ship visits.

The major incentive here, says Southwell, is that passengers can visit two islands in one day -- St. Kitts in the morning and nearby Nevis in the afternoon.

However, there is no deep water harbor, so passengers must arrive by tenders. The island offers the service of two small craft, but recommends the use of visiting ships' launches.

There's a duty-free shop at Golden Rock Airport, about a mile and a half from St. Kitts's capital, Basseterre, and plans are underway for another at the piers in town. However, reports Southwell, prices at our shops are often lower than those at so-called duty-free islands. A bottle of good Scotch whisky sells for about $2.40, and shops in Basseterre and Charlestown, capital of Nevis, are well-stocked with goods, mostly of British origin.

The three islands have a combined population of approximately 60,000, and a combined area of some 135 square miles.

St. Kitts, the largest, was first settled by the British in 1623, and has the distinction of being known as the "Mother Colony" of both the British and French Antilles. Its most famous attraction is Brimstone Hill, an impressive fortress known as "The Gibraltar of the West Indies."

Nearby Nevis is best known as the birthplace of Alexander Hamilton and for its connection with the famous British admiral, Lord Nelson, who married a local girl, Mrs. Frances Nisbet.

Both islands have fine beaches, scenic mountains and many historic landmarks. Anguilla, closer to half-French-half-Dutch St. Martin, is still relatively undeveloped, although it is reputed to have some of the finest beaches and clearest waters for skin diving in the Caribbean.

Deputy Premier Southwell also serves as minister of Finance, Trade, Development and Tourism. Accompanying him in New York are Edmund B. Morton, principal secretary to his ministry; and Arthur L. Evelyn of Evelyns Travel Agency, Nevis, and a representative of the tourist board for Nevis.

The new nation's tourist interests are represented in the United States by Martin J. Winach, general manager, Caribbean Travel Association, 20 East 46th Street, New York, New York 10017.

WIDE SELECTION OF SPRING AND SUMMER

CRUISES OFFERED TO SUNNY CARIBBEAN

Caribbean cruising is generally considered to be a winter pastime. It's a fact, however, that a leisurely voyage to the Caribbean's many exotic ports aboard a luxury liner is -- if anything -- even more delightful in the spring and summer.

The seas are calmer, the skies warm and sunnier so that the voyager can take advantage of the ship's facilities and open air activities from the very start. And the islands are at their colorful best, abloom with flora of every conceivable hue and cooled by nature's own air conditioner, the balmy trade winds. The winter crowds are gone, too, and visitors can explore scenic and tourist attractions, shop at freeport prices for fine merchandise at a fraction of stateside cost, and test their skill at the gaming tables in government-supervised casinos at a more relaxed, enjoyable pace than is possible during the peak season.

No less than 50 cruises to the Caribbean are being offered this spring and summer from New York, according to the Caribbean Travel Association. Vacationers can also choose from 30 or more cruise-like voyages to Central and South American ports which call at one or more Caribbean islands. In addition, there are at least 19 cruises scheduled from Port Everglades, Fla., New Orleans, Savannah and Baltimore either to the Caribbean alone or to Caribbean and Central and South American ports.

Just as during the winter season, the cruises call at the most popular islands. Ingres Line's Victoria, for example, will call at St. Thomas, Martinique, St. Vincent, Antigua and San Juan, as well as at Bermuda on her 13-day May 26 cruise. Minimums start at $495. The Victoria is scheduled for 12 Caribbean cruises between April 8 and August 13, and will also call at Curacao, Kingston, Barbados, St. Maartin, Guadeloupe and St. Croix at one time or another on her voyages to give travelers considerable leeway in selecting the cruise of their choice.

The Home Line offers no less than 11 cruises to the Caribbean through the end of August, with sailings every other Saturday from New York aboard the Homeric, as well as almost weekly 7-day cruises to Nassau by the Oceanic. Nine of the Homeric's 13-day cruises feature calls at San Juan, St. Thomas, Martinique and Kingston. Minimums start at $370 through June 17 and $390 thereafter. Also offered aboard the Homeric are a 10 1/2 day cruise June 5 to San Juan, St. Thomas, Antigua and St. Maartin, with minimums starting at $285, and a 10-day cruise August 26 to San Juan, St. Thomas and Port-au-Prince, from $265.

North German Lloyd offers a 12-day cruise April 13 aboard the Europa to Bermuda, San Juan, St. Croix, Guadeloupe and St. Maartin, with minimums starting at $360. The Greek Line's Olympia sails April 24 on a 9-day cruise to San Juan, St. Thomas and Bermuda. Minimums start at $275. Bermuda and St. Thomas are the ports to be visited by the 8-day May 3 cruise of the Holland American Line's Rotterdam, with minimums at $260.

Thirteen day cruises are offered every Friday from New York by the Grace Line, with calls at Curacao, La Guaira (port of Caracas), Aruba, Kingston and Port-au-Prince. The June 16 and June 23 cruises add St. Thomas to the itinerary while the earlier May 3 cruise substitutes San Juan for Kingston. Minimums start at $535 through June 16 and $595 thereafter.

The Grace Line also offers longer, 26-day cruises to the Pacific Coast of South America with stops at Caribbean ports. Sailing from New York every Saturday, the cruises call at Port-au-Prince or Kingston (alternate sailings), Cartagena, Cristobal, Balboa, Buenaventura, Guayaquil, and Callao. Minimums are from $755 through June 3 and $850 afterwards.

Travelers wishing to embark from southern ports are offered a representative selection of cruises. Cunard has scheduled two 8-day cruises from Port Everglades April 8 and April 17 aboard the Carmania to Nassau, Port-au-Prince, St. Thomas and San Juan, with minimums from $185. Also from Port Everglades, Costa Line offers 8-day cruises aboard the Federico C to San Juan, St. Thomas, Martinique and La Guaira on May 21, June 24, July 28 and August 31, starting at $240. Also scheduled is a 12-day cruise April 8 by the Federico C to Nassau, San Juan, St. Thomas, Martinique, Trinidad, La Guaira, Curacao and Port-au-Prince, from $315.

Moore-McCormack's Brasil sails from Savannah April 16 on a 7-day cruise to Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas. Minimums are from $265. The line also offers three cruises from Baltimore aboard the Argentina -- two 7-day cruises April 21 and May 22 to San Juan and St. Thomas, starting at $265, and a 12-day cruise April 12 to San Juan, St. Thomas, Martinique, Trinidad and Curacao, from $455.

Forty-seven day cruises to South American and Caribbean ports are offered twice monthly from New Orleans by Delta Lines. Minimum fares for the cruises which call at San Juan, Barbados, La Guaira and Curacao, as well as at Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Buenos Aires and Montevideo start at $810 through May 16 and $990 thereafter.
